Overview

The Journal of Democracy offers well-researched information on democracy. The journal examines theory on democratic movements around the world. Each issue includes articles, scholarly analysis, and book reviews that focus on the social sciences, political sciences, and democracy and human rights issues. The earliest issue of the journal available in this is from Winter 1990.

Unique features include:

- The ability to recommend articles to a friend through email.
- The ability to save some citations for future use.
- The ability to view articles in either HTML or downloadable PDF formats.

Details

Searching

To find an article, you can search either by clicking on an available individual issue of the Journal of Democracy or by manually typing a search term or keyword into the search box.

- Click "Search Journal".
- Type a keyword or search term and click the magnifying glass.
- Click the PDF link on an article you wish to see to download it to your computer, or click the HTML link to view it online.

NOTE: There is no way to limit searches by title or subject area.

Browsing

In addition to searching, you can browse individual issues of the magazine. To browse an individual issue and the articles within each issue, click on an issue available on the home page.

From there, you can click on an individual article to read it in either PDF or HTML format. To read the article in HTML format, click on the title of the article or on the HTML button underneath the article title. To read it in PDF format, you can click on the PDF button beneath the article title.

Recommending and Sharing Articles

To recommend an article to a friend, click on the title of the article that you want to share. On the right hand side of the page, there is a box that says, "Recommend". You can share a link to this article by entering a friend's email in this box and clicking send.

You can also share the on Facebook, Twitter, Google+, Gmail, StumbleUpon or Tumblr by clicking the thumbnail icons underneath the "Recommend" box and signing into the preferred account.

Saving Citations

To save a citation, click on the title of the article that you want to save. On the right hand side of the page underneath the "Recommend" box is a "Save Citation" button. Click this button. The citation will save.

To access these saved citations, go to the very top of the page and click on the "Saved Citations" button on the right hand side of the page. Once here, you can export the citation to a bibliographic resource like EndNote or RefWorks in MLA, APA or Chicago style format. It can also be exported to email by entering an email address and clicking "Send."